

LUCIANO MASSA, guitar

Luciano Massa was born on June 5th, 1980 in La Plata (Argentina).

He studied classical guitar at the Gilardo Gilardi Conservatory of his home town under tutelage of Jorge Gordillo and then continued his studies at the Fine Arts Faculty (Universidad Nacional de La Plata), graduating with honors as a Classical Guitar Professor.

In parallel, he followed courses and masterclasses in Buenos Aires with Víctor Villadangos, Eduardo Fernández and Eduardo Isaac. He completed his education abroad with Abel Carlevaro in Uruguay and Johan Fostier in Belgium.

He had also the chance to take part in different masterclasses in Switzerland, Germany and Spain given by renowned classical guitar players like David Russell, Hubert Käppel, Ricardo Gallén, Pablo Márquez, Judicaël Perroy, and ultimately found a great source of inspiration in the advices and lessons he received in Belgium from Hughes Kolp.

Luciano Massa has also won prizes and scholarships in Argentina and Spain (La Plata, Buenos Aires, Santiago de Compostela).

Currently based in Ghent, Belgium, Luciano Massa has been performing in Europe and South America, both as a soloist or taking part in different chamber music ensembles.

Luciano Massa's discography includes two solo albums: “Uco”, 2007 (Argentina) and “Que lo diga el río”, 2018, Baros Records (Slovenia).

He teaches classical guitar and chamber music at the Kuntsacademie Gent, Belgium.
